

State Governments Pass Sovereignty Legislation

States Rights Bills Snub Obama, Federal Power

With President Obama urging the Democrat majorities in the US House and Senate to pass stringent gun control and hate crime laws, a growing number of state legislatures are responding with acts declaring state sovereignty. These states rights declarations, submitted as resolutions, have passed handily.

On Feb. 26, the South Carolina House passed a strongly worded resolution (H.3509) affirming State Sovereignty as guaranteed by the 9th and 10 Amendments to the Constitution.

The South Carolina Resolution declares that acts by the Federal Government which infringe on State sovereignty "abridge the Constitution."

Examples from H.3509 challenging the authority of the Federal Government to trample states rights include: surrendering power to corporations or foreign governments, establishing martial law within a state without the consent of the state legislature, restrictions on religion, freedom of speech, and freedom of the press; and infringements on the right to keep and bear arms.

Rep. Charles Key of Oklahoma pushed a sovereignty resolution through the State Senate last year (See page 16). Eight state legislatures have similar bills pending, while twelve other states will likely consider sovereignty measures while in session this year.

Does your state have a sovereignty bill pending before the legislature? Consult your state representatives or visit your state government web site to find out if your state intends to send a message to Obama and Washington, DC that the Constitution rules!

CofCC National Conference
June 26 - 27, 2009
Jackson, Mississippi

GUY HUNT In Pacem Requiem

Alabama Governor Guy Hunt (l), with First Lady Helen Hunt, and CofCC Director Leonard Wilson photographed in the Governor's Mansion. The portrait is of Confederate war hero Maj. Thomas Goode Jones, who was elected governor of Alabama in 1890/.

Governor Guy Hunt was the featured speaker at the 1992 Council Leadership Conference held in Cullman, Alabama. One of the highlights of Hunt's 6-year tenure as Alabama governor was his defense of the Confederate flag flying at the Capitol in Montgomery, where the Confederacy was formed. Gov. Hunt had a Black legislator and NAACP agitator arrested for trying to remove the flag.

At the 1992 conference, Gov. Hunt was presented an award by the Council in recognition of his strong pro-Southern stance. Gov. Hunt is seen above with Council Board Member Leonard Wilson making the presentation.

Gov. Hunt would suffer undue persecution for his Christian faith and his staunch, Southern conservatism. He held to Jesus Christ through all.

Our good friend Gov. Guy Hunt passed away in February after a bout with lung cancer. Mr. Wilson attended the funeral service on behalf of the Council of Conservative Citizens.

Common sense never made a genius, and common decency never made a saint. -- Rolan

Lost in a Political Black-Out

Obama is a god to a post-racial personality cult. Michael Steele is a mere race hustler who will lead the Republican party out of the suburbs and into the ghetto.

Surely one day whites will arouse their own racial self-interests, shake off fears of being racist, and embrace the type of tribal solidarity that blacks share with Barack Obama. The collective blindspot preventing racial awareness among whites is a superstition that all such natural instincts lead to hooded lynch mobs.

Superstition comes from a fear of violating taboos controlled by mischievous spirits. The enemies of European people- and their are billions of them- have exploited white superstitions about race to their own advantage. The most potent fetish used to bewitch whites is, of course, the word racism. No matter that the word racism is a viral canard concocted by cultural Marxists to put whites in a perpetual state of nervous hysteria. What matters is keeping the superstition in play.

Eric Holder, the first black Attorney General of the US, clenches the racism totem in his dusky fist when he calls whites cowards for not having a candid dialog on race. Holder might as well call whites cowards for not stooping to drink out of the toilet. Whites know there is no such thing as a candid dialog with blacks. No such conversation on race has ever taken place without blacks shouting down whites and calling them racists. Besides, who will qualify for this race chat with Holder? Bill Clinton? David Duke? Prince Harry? The Pope? Who speaks on behalf of the white race in disputes with nonwhites? No one. Instead, whites seek out blacks to represent them by proxy. That's how Obama became president. Whites no longer feel entitled to speak for themselves in a menacing, nonwhite world.

What if a coalition of white organizations held a convention to choose a spokesman for the white race. Would the television networks show up to cover the